Mott Community College is now utilizing a system to rapidly communicate with students, faculty and staff in the event of an emergency.

In addition to sending emergency alerts to anyone with a College-provided email account, MCC has the capability of sending communications via voice mail and text messages to home, work and/or cellular telephones.

In order to receive emergency text messages and voice mail alerts, you must provide emergency contact information by following these simple steps:

I. On the home page, mcc4me, you will find the Emergency Notification Link.

You can call the MCC Information Technology Services Help Desk at (810) 767-4357 if you have questions or problems with signing up to receive the emergency alerts.

All MCC students, faculty and staff can receive emergency notification through the existing College voice mail and email systems. However, only those who have provided the MCC Emergency Notification System with cell phone information can be contacted via text messages.

The MCC Emergency Notification System is specifically designed to enhance campuswide communication through multiple points of contact. The Emergency Notification System helps MCC maintain its commitment to ensuring the safety and security of the College community by taking necessary steps to broaden its reach of emergency communications.
